Handiwork Shows Pleasing Variety

Illustrative of a new branch of work in the public schools system is the window exhibit placed this morning in the Chamber of Commerce offices at 613 Main street. Handiwork of the Senior High School classes in commercial advertising, the display has been effectively arranged, offering a pleasing variety of posters whose subjects have been well handled against a striking modernistic back ground of Polar blues and white suggestive of icelandic regions. Cloth and paper mounting in arresting designs mark the posters advertising nationally known stores and products. and of particular appeal is a finely executed etching illustrative of an old time English inn and placed in advertisement of a new book bearing that name.

The work of Kenneth Clapp, is most prominent among the pieces shown. Another striking piece is the stocking advertisement showing a figure well mounted in a combination of cloth and paper in a modernistic framing. Arrangement of windows pleasing to the shopper's eye and training as a basis for work in commercial advertising are becoming prominent in commercial advertising methods taught in our schools.

TO THE SENIORS

WE stand as a diver stands on the end of a spring board, in a dry bathing suit, after he has been told that the water is cold. We stand in the warm sunlight, on something solid of which we are sure, and are surrounded by all the things we have become accustomed to in the last twelve years. We are standing ready to plunge out of this sheltered existence we have led into the sea of life of which we know little and which we have been told is cold. Many of us would hesitate; we would, if we could, linger on the board's end. Now, however, it is our turn to dive and others are waiting: when graduation pushes us, let us leap high and dive deep into the sea of life. Let us hope that it will produce in us the same actions as cold water does, after the first thrilling shock; let us hope that it will awaken in us a desire to struggle upward from the cold, dark depths of this strange sea, toward the light, toward the top, with every ounce of energy we possess, until we swim on the calm, sunlit surface of the sea of life.

TO THE JUNIORS

Juniors, we leave, "Carry on." Be senior-like Seniors. Be dignified, helpful, and kind, studious, if possible, and useful too. Above all, be business-like and let no one tread on your toes. Tolerate the Sophomores for they will be high-hat Juniors, as you were once and we were too, so bear up under them with the best grace possible: they are not really bad at all, you know. Take good care of the in-coming Sophomores; they need your help so boost them along. We leave to you our exalted place. Juniors, carry on!

TO THE SOPHOMORES

Be scholars; the Junior year counts most and it is hard. Be respectful to Seniors and help them carry their worldly weight. Do not be snobs (although you will of course be high-hat.) Just be good fellows.

TO THE INCOMING SOPHOMORES

Do your level best in every possible way.

Irwin Smith, 1931.

THE hustle and bustle of rushed June days before graduation has come—for the Seniors. We Juniors who are to take their places feel the swirl of activities and events with less excitement, for we know that next September Waltham High will be waiting for us to come back. But while we are watching the Seniors' busy preparations with happy anticipation of our own last year, we are wishing them all success and good luck in whatever phase of occupation they may pursue. Some may have positions in the vicinity of Waltham while others' work may call them to more distant fields. Of course, there will be those who will continue their pursuit of learning in higher institutions. We hope they all will achieve their ambition whether it be fame, riches, or happiness.

We Juniors, however, realize the responsibilities which the graduating class have borne and appreciate the standards they have set and the reputation they have earned. We shall make it our aim to maintain these high standards.

The Class of '32 says, "Success and good luck to the Class of '31."

CLASS ODE

Our lives are like giant mirrors, friend,
Picturing scenes that never end.
Believest thou not? Then come with me
Over the Road of Life and see.
Here there are ranged three mirrors tall,
Past, Present, Future. At our call
In the Mirror of Past, baby figures play
In meadows bright with blossoms gay,
And a laughing brook runs its winding way.
So passes our childhood's happy day.

Now to the Mirror of Present we come—
Happy we've been—but that day is done.
Our games and our lessons are all put away;
And we're waiting here for another day.
The brook is a swelling river strong,
Gathering strength as it hurries along.
Gathering strength from beginning to end,
While green trees over the river bend—
And the sun with its kindly, fostering ray,
Like God in his heaven, shines on our way.

The Present is done; the Future draws nigh.
Success—we all think of, thou and I.
It shines in the distance—a beacon light;
Remember, it is not fortune or might:—
Success means living your own life right,
Making your record honorable, bright.
The little waves, like eager feet,
Rush out, the glorious dawn to meet.
The bells of a bright, new sunrise ring,—
And we wonder what the dawn will bring.

Martha Vosburgh, 1931.

Last Will and Testament of 1931

To Whom it may concern:

BE it known that we, the class of 1931, of the Waltham High School, and lately the most prominent unit of the same, being of sound mind and in full possession of our faculties, and capable of disposing of property in view of the uncertainties of life do appoint, transfer, bequeath, and devise our estate as follows:

To the class of 1932 we leave the brilliant minds of the class of 1931 so that they may be able to decide on one stationary date to set for their proms, also the honor of paying for the property to be left to Miss Burgess.

To the class of 1933 we leave a cage of monkeys to accompany them on their journeys through the high school in their hectic moments, such as sliding down banisters and staging mob scenes in the corridors.

To the class of 1934, the incoming class, we leave the pure and saintly air of the seniors to guard them and keep them from the harms of life.

To our beloved master, Mr. Burke, we leave a huge bandanna handkerchief to remind him of the many tears shed by the class of 1931, at the thought of leaving their Alma Mater, also a double sized megaphone to give out his favorite slogan "The first two rows may pass out."

To Mr. Goodrich, our beloved sub-master and master mind, we leave a television set so that he may keep his eagle eye on pupils having wandering moods.

To Mr. Ward we leave a permanent pass to Waltham's Little Theatre, also a full length portrait of John Harvard to be hung over his desk in room 14.

To Miss Ober we leave the best wishes of room 19, also a set of sound-proof walls to be placed in the teachers' room so that her classes may not be disturbed by mysterious sounds floating from that locality.

To Miss Burgess we leave a new set of chairs to match her ultra-modern drawing desks, also a ferocious Pekingese dog to guard her paints and brushes during her absence from the drawing room.

To Miss Hunter we leave a class for the fourth period so that she may not be able to go looking for wandering girls.

To Miss Woodward we leave the permanent honor of being the head of the employment agency so that she may be able to find suitable positions for her industrious pupils.

To Mr. Hollis we leave a passenger balloon so that he may take his pupils for a trip to fairy land to secure proofs for his imaginary stories.

To Mr. Hodge we leave an inexhaustible package of cough drops with which to supply his classes, and to his famous Collie dog, Lord Ronald, Major for short, we leave our deepest sympathy for having such a harsh master.

To Miss Campbell we leave a ten-year contract with Warner Brothers Movietone Company so that she may continue in her good work in producing plays.

To Miss Rand we leave our sincerest sympathy at having lost such a class as 1931, because of its dramatic ability.

To Miss Hoffman we leave a Daschund puppy to remind her of her many trips to Germany.

To Miss Clement we leave a new French flag to take the place of the remains now hanging in room 9.

To the trio of our faculty, Miss Hart, Miss Rockwood, and Miss Darmedy we leave a suite of rooms in the new high school, in which they may spend their leisure moments in each other's beloved company.

To lighten the toil of climbing to the fourth floor to her domestic pupils every morning, we leave Miss Cutting the encouraging thought that she does not have to climb the Bunker Hill Monument instead.

To Miss Spencer we leave a class of Albert Einsteins so that she may at last find someone who understands the theory or relativity.

To Miss Marcher we leave the hopes of having her library occupied by as studious pupils as those in the class of 1931 so that she may save wear and tear on the ends of her pencils on highly polished tables to restrain all commotion, also a noiseless typewriter so that moments of concentration will not be rudely interrupted.

We should like to know who the young gentleman is that Miss Flagg drives to school every morning in her new Whippet-6. Our suspicions have led us to believe that he sits in room 14. We leave her our sincerest hopes that she will find another companion from the class of 1932 as appreciative as her former passenger.

To sum up the brilliant career of Miss Rigby in Commercial Law, we hereby appoint her as attorney for the defense of pupils summoned to the sanctum sanctorum of Judge Arthur N. Burke on the charge of misbehavior.

In order that Mr. Sheehy may continue his good work of directing the wayward sophomores to their home rooms as they enter the building at one o'clock, we leave him a policeman's uniform to add dignity to his authority.

To Mrs. Clapp we leave a metronome to keep time for her unsteady beginners in typing, also, a new supply of Ruth Edding's latest song hits to play on her much used phonograph.

To Miss Mudgett we leave a supply of water buckets to be placed in room 19 at the time of floods caused by one of the experimental geniuses in her laboratory classes.

To Mr. Nottenburg we leave the honor of being the chief printer of the New York Times as a reward for his excellent work in the publishing of the Mirror.

To Mr. Leary and Miss Sewall we leave the lastest edition of Perfect Alibis that have been in the past and will be in the future used by pupils who do not desire the athletic build.

To Mr. Kimball we leave a class of curious boys who delight in puzzling out endless examples of why and how a thing is done in Physics.

To Mr. Crawford we leave our deepest sympathy at having to lose his former symphony players, and we hope that the orchestra of 1932 will be able to equal the genius ability of its predecessors.

To Miss Norris we leave our fondest wishes that she may continue to enjoy the socials and proms of the coming year, and that she may continue to have equally as good dancing partners as have been in her former sophomore classes.

As our co-executors, we appoint the one who sold the French the snow shovels with which to build the Panama Canal, and the one who controls the price of Mexican jumping beans in Patagonia, who shall carry out the provisions of this will when a new high school shall bless our fair city.

In testimony whereof, we set our hand, ordaining and declaring this to be our last will and testament, this fifth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and fifty ninth.

Wendell Maher, 1931.

History of the Class of 1931

NO good fortune prevented us from becoming sophomores three years ago. No kind spirit protected us from this inglorious fate, this callow state. We were just what the word implies, sophomores, sophos-moros, half wise, half foolish, just "common clay"! Because of this condition, because we were not vastly different from former sophomores, we were ignored by upper-classmen, and we commanded no respect or admiration from our teachers, a sad beginning for our confident expectancy.

These first pangs of disappointment were somewhat abated when the great barrier between us and the junior and senior classes was broken by the common vision we all entertained of a new, modern high school. Perhaps the juniors would graduate from the new building; we surely would. A second common property was our sensational football team and our equally sensational band. We had a very successful season, and both the team and the band won fame.

One distinction we enjoyed; we were the first sophomore class for whom a course in music was compulsory. Rehearsals for the sophomore choruses in the operetta Ivan, the Terrible began early. We screeched wild Russian songs, wore Russian costumes, and pretended to do Russian dances. Mr. Schoonmaker, who had written the operetta, took the part of the mad Ivan. He displayed not a small amount of talent, and it is to him that we owe the success of the production. We made further musical efforts at Christmas time, when we sang carols in our beautiful, childish, sophomore fashion.

After the Christmas vacation, what remained of the winter passed quickly. We elected our class officers: Adam Danosky, president; Beulah Weymouth, vice-president; Virginia Boucher, secretary and treasurer; Morrison Shirley, auditor. Spring came, bringing its usual fevers and its annual crop of moustaches. We had an assortment among the seniors and the faculty ranging from the charming Ronald Coleman model to the Sedate Mr. Smith (the brother on the left-hand side of the box). Another sign of spring was the number of "crushes" which seniors had on sophomores. They had yielded at last and were even carrying "sophs" in their typical collegiate Fords. These and other trials we survived, and at the end of the year we had lived through the great ordeal; our class was still in existence.

Our junior year was a glorious adventure; for the struggles of our career as sophomores were past, and College Boards were sufficiently distant to remain unheeded. The question of our new school was allowed to remain in the legendary state into which it had subsided; but, since present relief was urgent, the gods themselves intervened, as it seemed, and effected a splendid arrangement whereby most of the sophomores had to come to school in the afternoon, the rest and more fortunate part of the students coming in the morning. With only an unappreciative quantity of "sophomoric clay" to mar the alabaster field of our accomplishment, our delicate sensibilities were gratified, and our dispositions became remarkably untroubled, entirely content. In such a state of mind we elected these officers; Adam Danosky, president; Mildred Fox, vice-president; Bertha Storer, secretary and treasurer; Beulah Weymouth, auditor. Then, with the traditionally carefree spirit of the junior, we cheered our illustrious football team through a brilliant season, and we lustily roared the Waltham High School's historical Battle Cry, trying, as it were, "to beat" our now famous band.

Although no band proclaimed its achievements, our Mirror was recognized last year, in respect both to physical and literary makeup, as the best volume of our magazine ever published. We were proud of it, and we endeavored to continue its success as an important part of our school.

When Miss Seabury became ill early in December and had to leave her classes for several months, the French department suffered a great loss, and we all experienced a deep sorrow. For the rest of the year Miss Josephine Hart substituted for Miss Seabury.

December passed, and January; and once again it was February. We had a Valentine Dance for our class social, and we "put one over" on Father Time by convincing him that he had arrived only at the tenth hour, although, indeed, he was seven paces ahead of this time when we went home. In addition to valentines and socials, February brought its usual fevers. Pushed on by these things, the "young man's fancy" was only too ready to take its accustomed turn in spring. Once more we recognized masterpieces of the tonsorial art, and once more seniors became enamored of sophomores.

But even in these trying conditions we had serious affairs at hand. Our school won honors in the Massachusetts and New England Music Festivals. Further honor came to us when a group of school children from Caney Creek, Kentucky, came to visit us. They told us about their progress in education and explained their strange but remarkable moral system to us. Although their principles and methods were unusual, they were nevertheless splendid; and we were grateful to Miss Hall, whose efforts had made possible their visit to us. This is but one of the many admirable things Miss Hall has done for us, and, although she has resigned, we still feel her fine and splendid influence.

Next in our history we decided that blue and cream make a combination sufficiently noble for our class colors and that "aut vincere aut mori" was sufficiently eloquent to represent our ideals. After we had settled these things, we held our Prom. The affair, which was very pretty and very successful, forms a pleasant part of our history. Our junior year was nearing its end, when we learned one day that Miss Mudgett had suffered an unfortunate accident and would be unable to meet her classes for some time. Both teachers and pupils heard this news with sorrow, for we all love Miss Mudgett.

Thus our adventure was over; we were seniors, still waving the blue and cream, still determined "aut vincere aut mori"; mostly "mori" when it concerned football. Our band however, was still strong, and our Mirror had won recognition in a national contest conducted by the Quill and Scroll. Others of our good fortunes were Miss Norris, our new Latin teacher, Miss Caswell of the French department, and Miss Grover of the commercial department. Still another sign for a favorable year was our wise election of class officers: Elwood Johnson, president; Charlotte Bell, vice-president; Bertha Storer, secretary and treasurer; Howard Morash, auditor. Best of all, Mr. Ward was to supervise our affairs.

Hardly had we begun our year when we realized too well the meaning of Milton's

"But O the heavy change, now thou art gone,
Now thou art gone and never must return!"; for Miss Pratt, our loved teacher and friend, had died. We shall never forget her noble and splendid work, her beautiful and inspiring life. For a few weeks Miss Mendum took Miss Pratt's place; now we have Mr. Reynolds.

Our first social affair was the Senior dance, which was early in December. Once more Nutting's saw the blue and cream in one of the prettiest events it had ever witnessed and one of the happiest incidents of our history. Its refreshing influence continued till the end of the month, when Miss Hall sent us some candy for a Christmas present. After the Christmas vacation we had a Masquerade Ball. At this, our senior social, we experienced the traditional privilege of the senior, that of staying till the unprecedented hour of eleven.

Fulfillment of another senior tradition was our play, It Pays to Advertise. This is a three-act comedy, farcical, witty, and artistic. The performance formed an appropriate prelude to our spring vacation. After vacation we were pleased to have Miss Seabury and Miss Mudgett with us again. More good fortune was the School Board's decision that we should graduate June eleventh—the best news we had heard all year.

Having settled these things, we gave our attention to the more serious questions of diploma points and College Board Entrance Examinations. This matter put an immediate damper on all frivolity, and the "young man's fancy" dared not take its proverbial turn. More work was done in the few remaining days than had hitherto been done in weeks. Sophomores wonderingly beheld our senior countenances grow serious and grave; we provoked from them the admiration and respect which we, as sophomores ourselves, had formerly failed to command.

And now that our illustrious history is ended, although we are somewhat dazed at the brevity of three years, we are nevertheless certain of three things: first, we believe in a beautiful myth, our new high school; secondly, we feel confident that blue and cream make the noblest of combinations; and thirdly we are still determined "aut vincere aut mori"!

"Missionaries Leave for the Orient

Their Reverences Francis Biggins, John Connerney, and William Atwood, all of this city, left for Upper Rangoon this morning where they will join the Rev. Paul Durkin in his extensive missionary work. Other Walthamites who are now in foreign lands as missionaries are Miss Irene Burke, Miss Dorothy Jacobs, the Rev. Arthur Erickson, the Rev. Francis McIvor, and Miss Olga Anderson, secretary to Mr. McIvor."

"Prepare For Polar Flights

High Admiral Arthur Chiasson announced today that preparations for his flight to the North Pole were nearly complete. His secretary, Miss Lois Seested, has been swamped with letters for Santa Claus, all of which the Admiral has promised to deliver when he says, 'Hello, Santa Claus.' Frank Farrar, radio operator for the expedition, will ask Santa to say a few words to us from his ice palace at the North Pole."

"Miss Dorothy O'Malley, well-known local aviatrix, is also planning a flight to the North Pole in order to do her Christmas

"Coin Collectors Fail To Collect

At closing time yesterday Kenneth Clapp and Theron Wilson, both of Waltham, entered the Waltham Trust Company and forced Miss Beulah Weymouth, a teller, to admit them to the vaults. Freeman Patterson, Trust Company janitor, heroically summoned the police by means of the new burglar alarm system recently installed by Howard Morash and Morrison Shirley, electrical engineers of Waltham and Chicago. Capt. Douglas Hogan, Sergeant Marshal Robichaud, and officers William Orpin, Warren Eaton, Axel Larson, and Joseph LeBrun of the local police, responded to the call and Wilson and Clapp were soon in the care of Robert Mickalson, turn-key of the local jail. Chief of Police, Alton Currin, praised his men for their quick work. When asked their motive by Willard Jackson, police reporter of the Waltham Daily Mirror, Clapp and Wilson replied that it was their hobby to collect coins."

"Frederick Haggarty Hospital Overcrowded

Nurses added to staff today are: Misses Margaret Bowman, Martha Isaacson, Gladys Jones, Margaret Galligan, Louise Fynn, Hazel Sprague, Dorothy Tortola, Eleanor Weaver, Helena Taletowicz, Elin Gustavson, and Marguerite Jones. Dr. Roger Hunt says, 'The Haggarty Hospital for cats must expand'."

"Local School Teachers Taken in Raid

Sergeant John Fitzgerald and officers Frederick Judd and Kenneth Larsen were attracted to the Crystal Pool Parlor last evening by cries of 'Seven, seven, come eleven!' and 'Come on, you little black and white!' They entered just in time to see Miss Gertrude Harrington, teacher of elocution at the Senior High, roll a pair of dice on the floor. The others who filled up the circle of the merry little game were booked by the police as: Misses Eleanor Brown, Charlotte McLeod, Marie Bresnahan, Charlotte Gibbs, Josephine Graceffa, Bernice Bowley, Margaret Hanselpacker, and Esther Silver, director of girls' athletics, all of the Senior High faculty. Misses Mildred Harrington and Virginia Bush, proprietresses of the Pool Parlor, said the game was carried on without their consent. Others taken in the raid were: William Clark and Edward Regan, men about town; Elmer Keith, a Fuller Brush man; Knute Johnson, football coach; Sam Marcou, a pugilist; Benjamin Weinstein, Richard Dorrington, Clive Arlsworth, and Keith MacLean, sailors. Some of these fellows appeared rocky on their feet, but Mary Russo, soda-jerker, said that she had served nothing stronger than ginger ale."

George Rosenburg brought suit against Miss Emily Sanderson, fortune teller today, claiming she is a fraud and a fake. A year ago Miss Sanderson said he would be married within six months. He is still a bachelor."

"Mr. James Woodside, builder of the Blackbird 24, has given a car to each member of his office staff. The lucky ones are: Misses Geraldine Campbell, Marie Casey, Enid Crellin, Patricia Lemon, Florence MacAlpine, Josephine Paolinó, Lillas Mann, and Clare Golden."

"Personals"

"Mrs. Robert Seikel, the former Mildred Fox, of this city, entertained a group of old friends at her home in Wellesley, where Professor Seikel is engaged as instructor of bicycling. The guests were: Mrs. John Francis Carroll, Jr., the former Elinor Nye, wife of the man who has convinced the world that 'It Pays to Advertise'; Miss Barbara Barrows, president of the Waltham Woman's Republican Club; Miss Enid MacArthur, proprietress of the new Fairyland Bowling Alleys; Miss Virginia Boucher, who has just returned from her third successful tour of the West, including her usual six weeks stay in Reno; and Mademoiselle Mildred Leugene Talbot, the famed designer of men's clothes, of Paris, London, and this city."

"Miss Rebecca Krongard, famous violinist of this city, recently entertained Lawrence Gilligan, King of Abyssinia, and Prime Minister Tony Giralamo at the Royal Palace, which has been redecorated by Margaret Schaufus, assisted by Irene Cossaboom and Grace Kennedy, and with mural paintings by Betty Burckes, Dorothy Hornbeck, and Charles Perelli. Modern plumbing has been installed in the palace by Robert McKenna & Co.

"Mr. Robert Eichler, millionaire manufacturer of mouse traps, arrived here yesterday for a brief business trip. He had with him seven pretty secretaries. They are: Misses Mildred Glasgow, Evelyn Lundgren, Viola Augustin, Ruth Young, Mildred Trott, Johanna Stringillo, and Lucia Bach."

"Miss Pauline Baine's famous Chesapeake Champion, Brownie, was missing for two hours from Baine Kennels yesterday. He was returned by the garbage man, Harold Keeman."

"Russell Furbush has been appointed official sandwich taster at Hotel Harrington by the proprietors, Elliot and Donald Harrington. They have recently engaged Miss Helen Ryan as a hostess. Roger Schaller & Co. are building a new wing on to the hotel. George Payne is decorating the interior."

"Professor Robert Johnson of Mass. Institute of Technology will speak on 'Electrons' at N. J. H. S. tomorrow evening."

"Miss Charlotte Bell has patented a collapsible bicycle which she can carry in her car to ride home on in case of breakdowns."

"Miss Frances Allen, formerly of Waltham and Venice, has started a frog ranch down in Georgia."

"Evelyn Hurwitz struck gold in a Berlin beer merchant, mined it, and is home again."

"Anna Thurston of this city is in China teaching the yellow girls the game of baseball."

"Miss Dorothy Van der Wyk, writer of 'Just Boys' stories, has published a collection of them in book form. Joseph Ferro is the printer."

"Mrs. Paul Persson, formerly Martha Dent, held a dinner party last night. Miss Caroline Delfino, recently returned from Hawaii, entertained with native dances."

"Miss Helen Cataldo, winner of the Pulitzer History prize for 1940, entertained her old friends Marion Peredier, housewhole arts expert; Sara Pinkham, canning expert; and Alma Pontz, costume designer, yesterday at tea time."

"Mrs. Mona Nugent Bonney, wife of Loen Bonney, the inventor arrived home from a tour of Europe yesterday. Bonney says she never interferes with his work."

"Miss Isabel Hentz, mail order clerk at Sears, Roebuck & Co., is spending the week end in Roberts."

"Miss Elinor Johnson, popular radio singer, known as 'The Weeping Canary', will sing at the South Junior High tonight."

"Miss Helen Finnerty has resigned her position as secretary to John D. Rockefeller to go into the Motion Picture game. The old man was so broken up that he has had a statue of her placed in his office."

"Mr. Robert Brown has been appointed to sit behind the information desk in the Chamber of Commerce."

"Miss Edna Mudgett, dairy products queen, is spending the week end here."

Mrs. Bertha Storer Leonard, wife of Mr. John Leonard, manager of the Old Howard Theatre, has returned with her three children, Bob, Bertha, and little Johnnie, Jr., from an extensive tour of the world."

Habit-forming?
Yes!--but it's a good habit

Hundreds of people have formed the habit of dropping into our office once a month and making payments on their shares. It's a habit—the habit of saving—a habit that has bought homes, provided education for children, carried families through times of distress

BURDETT COLLEGE

A Professional Business School of College Grade

IS INTERESTED in high school graduates far-sighted enough to see that a high school education supplemented by additional, more highly specialized training is the best preparation for a useful business career.

REPEATS ITS RECOMMENDATION that young people contemplating a business career finish first their high school course, later entering college or business school as their fitness or need may require.

FOR YOUNG MEN Burdett College offers Business Administration and Accounting Courses as preparation for sales, credit, financial and accounting positions.

FOR YOUNG WOMEN, Executive Secretarial, Stenographic-Secretarial, and Finishing Courses as preparation for promising secretarial positions.

FOR BOTH young men and young women, Office Management and Bookkeeping Courses as preparation for varying types of office positions.

Previous Commercial Training not Required for Entrance

Distinctive features of Burdett College are—personal attention—able faculty—exceptional preparation—individual advancement—desirable student associates—placement service. Students attending come from universities, colleges, high schools, and academies. Placement calls for graduates numbered 3149 the past year.

In the Long Run

you and your friends will prize the portrait that look like you-your truest self, free from stage effects and little conceits.

It is in this "long run" photography that Purdy success has been won.

Portraiture by the camera that one cannot laugh at or cry over in later years.

For present pleasure and future pride protect your photographic self by having Purdy make the portraits.
